

International Cultural Studies Certificate Program (ICSCP)

University of Hawaii at Manoa

CUL 750: Capstone Project

Description: Once the student has completed all course requirements, s/he will be ready to begin the capstone experience. After initial consultation with the co-directors of the Program, the student will select an advisor for the capstone experience research project. Together, the student and the advisor will conceive of a research project to be pursued by the student. For students pursuing MA and Ph.D. degrees at UH, the capstone experience may form one part of or overlap with their larger research projects.

The capstone project is expected to be work of publishable quality. On the other hand, it may also be a project related to the performing arts or to community development.

This project ultimately provides the student with an opportunity to pursue her/his interests within the framework of Cultural Studies theory and practice. Thus, the topics are endless.

Please note the Deadlines for various CUL 750 requirements on the back side of this sheet. Students are responsible for all communication with their Advisor, including informing their Advisor of all their Deadlines.
